

David Young

Unusually for a school governor I have no children. That doesn't diminish my passion for wanting to ensure that all children have the very best education in the best possible environment.

I am 48 years old and have lived in Bradford all of my life. I grew up in Baildon and still live there today's despite working all over the country.

I have worked all my life in the hospitality industry becoming property director of one of the biggest pub companies in the U.K. I have expertise in property, finance, HR as well as managing motivating and developing large teams of people.

Following a takeover of the business I took a redundancy package and decided to take some time out from work focusing on some voluntary work of which Russell Hall is a significant part.

I am also chairman of the Bradford Cricket League and sit on the Yorkshire Cricket Premier Management Board.
